HOW THIS REPORT IS COMPILED

PCADV's annual Fatality Report has been the single most reliable source for domestic violence-related deaths in Pennsylvania for more than 17 years.

The Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, unlike some states, has no central database or separate reporting requirements for domestic violence homicides. PCADV compiles its annual list based on news accounts, police reports and information received from our 60 community-based domestic violence centers serving all 67 counties. Our list is based on information available at publication and is subject to change as circumstances warrant. (For updates, please visit www.pcadv.org.)

We counted killings among current, former and new intimate partners, including perpetrators who kill their ex-partner's new partner. Our aggregate total also includes perpetrator suicides and perpetrators who were killed by police or other interveners, as well as bystander and intervener deaths during domestic violence incidents.

We excluded unsolved cases; cases where no arrests were made, even if intimate partners or family members are suspects; and child abuse and child neglect cases, because they are reported by the Pennsylvania Department of Human Services.

*This report is dedicated to all domestic violence homicide victims in Pennsylvania, and to those working to end domestic violence
for the next generation.*

REPORT OVERVIEW

From 2006-2015 calendar year, 1,496 Pennsylvanians died in domestic violence-related incidents. Those killed were women, children and men of all ages and socio-economic groups. In 2015 alone there were 113 victims killed: 68 women and 45 men. There were 33 perpetrator deaths in 2015.

FATALITIES BY COUNTY

Our records show that domestic violence-related deaths in Pennsylvania, which include victims and perpetrators, increased by about 3.5 percent, from 141 in 2014 to 146 in 2015.

The total number of victims who were killed increased by approximately 16 percent from 97 in 2014 to 113 in 2015. However, the number of domestic violence homicide incidents increased by 4.6 percent from 108 in 2014 to 113 in 2015.

- For the third year in a row, Allegheny County recorded the most domestic violence-related fatalities (victims/perpetrators) with 20 in 2015. Eight of the 20 fatalities were in Pittsburgh.
- York County experienced seven fatalities in 2014, but 15 in 2015, a 114 percent increase.
- Philadelphia County deaths declined from 20 in 2014 to 16 in 2015.
- Bucks County saw a 200 percent increase, from three fatalities in 2014 to nine in 2015.

PERPETRATOR PROFILES: HOW THEY KILLED

As in previous years, guns were the primary weapon perpetrators used to kill their victims in 2015. Guns were used in 54 percent of 113 incidents last year.

Since 2006, abusers have overwhelmingly used guns to kill. As illustrated in the graph below, gun-related murders ranged from a low of 46 in 2007 to a high of 73 in 2009. In 2015, perpetrators used firearms to kill more than half of their victims.

LETHALITY ASSESSMENT PROGRAM

Reducing domestic violence homicides is a priority for both domestic violence programs and law enforcement.

A proven method for reducing domestic violence homicides is the Lethality Assessment Program. LAP is a nationally recognized, evidence-based program with demonstrated success in strengthening partnerships between law enforcement and domestic violence service providers and connecting intimate partner victims of domestic violence with lifesaving services, thereby reducing domestic violence fatalities.

In Maryland, where LAP originated and is currently implemented in every law enforcement agency and all 20 domestic violence programs, the incidence of domestic violence homicides has declined by an average of 25 percent over the past six years, a result directly attributable to use of LAP.

LAP provides field officers with a screening tool that helps identify domestic violence victims who are at greatest danger of being killed by abusive partners. Victims who answer affirmatively to a series of questions are placed in immediate contact with domestic violence counselors.

LETHALITY ASSESSMENT PROGRAM IMPLEMENTED 2012-2016

NOTE: Not every police department in the shaded counties is participating in LAP.

In the 2015 calendar year 3,351 LAP screens were introduced at an intimate partner domestic violence scene.

2,316 victims, or 69 percent, screened in as high-danger and 1,526 (66 percent) of those victims spoke with a domestic violence hotline advocate. Also, 996 (65 percent) who spoke to a hotline advocate accessed life-saving domestic violence program services. An additional 613 victims accessed life-saving program services, although they did not screen as high danger, answer questions or speak with a hotline advocate at the scene.

PCADV began implementing LAP in late 2012 with 12 counties participating. By the end of the first quarter of 2016, 167 out of 1,200 police departments with 40 domestic violence programs serving 38 counties will have implemented LAP.

PCADV also is partnering with college police departments to offer LAP screenings on campuses. LAP screening questions educate younger dating violence victims about unhealthy relationships and how some of those behaviors can be lethal. PCADV added six colleges in Pittsburgh in 2015 for a total of 12 colleges trained on LAP.

“Duquesne University police are happy to use LAP as a valuable tool to help reduce domestic violence,” said Mike Sippey, assistant chief in the Department of Public Safety.
